Island of Hvar, Croatia

Croatia

GREAT WEALTH OF CULTURAL HERITAGE

Due to its important position at crossroads of great civilizations, Croatia is characterized by exceptional diversity of cultural heritage with a presence of unique testimonies from the earliest prehistoric times.

Despite its small geographical size and population Croatia boasts eight cultural and two natural properties inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List, making it one of the top few countries with the most protected assets in the world.

THE LAND OF THOUSAND ISLANDS

With nearly 3,200 kilometers of coastline and more than 1,200 magnificent islands, Croatia is a country of unparalleled beauty and a real paradise for sailors and natural beauty seekers.

The limpid sapphire waters of the Adriatic, secluded bays surrounded by untouched nature and charming little seaside towns will simply enchant you over and over.

Dubrovnik, Croatia

Lake Bled, Slovenia

Slovenia

THE POWER OF THERMAL WATERS

Slovenia is a country known after its rich water resources; in particular, natural thermal springs. There are over 85 thermal springs with waters emerging at temperature ranging between 24°C and 73°C, featuring distinctive therapeutic effects and healing properties. In addition to the thermal waters, Slovenia is also home to sources of drinkable mineral water of global repute.

The local thermal bathing culture dates back to Roman era. Today, 15 Slovenian health spas and well-being centers take pride in their certified status as a natural health resort, providing a fabulous combination of medical wellness therapies, relaxation programs, modern accommodation, outdoor activities, social events, local experiences, etc.

To feel Slovenia means to feel good.

A COUNTRY WITH BOUNTIFUL NATURE

The beauty of Slovenia is hidden in its natural diversity, which is offering an outstanding mosaic of different landscapes. It is the only European country set at crossroads of the Alps, the Mediterranean, the Karst and the Pannonian Plain – all within only a two-hour-driving distance.

There are almost 50 natural parks, around 35 percent of the country's territory is protected and more than 60 percent of Slovenia is covered by deciduous and evergreen forests, making it the third most forested country in Europe.

Bosnia- Herzegovina

MELTING POT OF CULTURES

Visiting Bosnia-Herzegovina and its astounding ancient cities means walking far back into the past, through a complex melting pot of diverse cultures, religions, bloody conflicts and major historical events that interchangeably formed this country's rich and contrasting heritage throughout centuries.

The country's longstanding and turbulent history is evidently marked in almost every of its sophisticated architectural traces, gastronomic influences, artistic creations and various symbolic customs.

TRUE SPORTS PARADISE

Bosnia-Herzegovina is a true paradise for active outdoor fun with an enormous offer on water sports, winter sports and plenty of adventure activities. White-water rafting and kayaking can be enjoyed on some of Europe's most challenging and abundant rivers of 'Neretva' and 'Una'. The excellent ski destinations, also known as hosts to the 1984 Winter Olympics, represent a terrific winter sport potential.

The heart-shaped country is also regionally and internationally renowned after its stunning pristine nature, diversity of untouched landscapes and extensive ecosystems. Europe's only rainforest 'Perucica' and one of the largest bird reserves 'Hutovo Blato' are just a few that can be explored in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

Mostar, Bosnia-Herzegovina

Island of Sveti Stefan, Montenegro

Montenegro

ANCIENT LAND OF FAIRY TALES

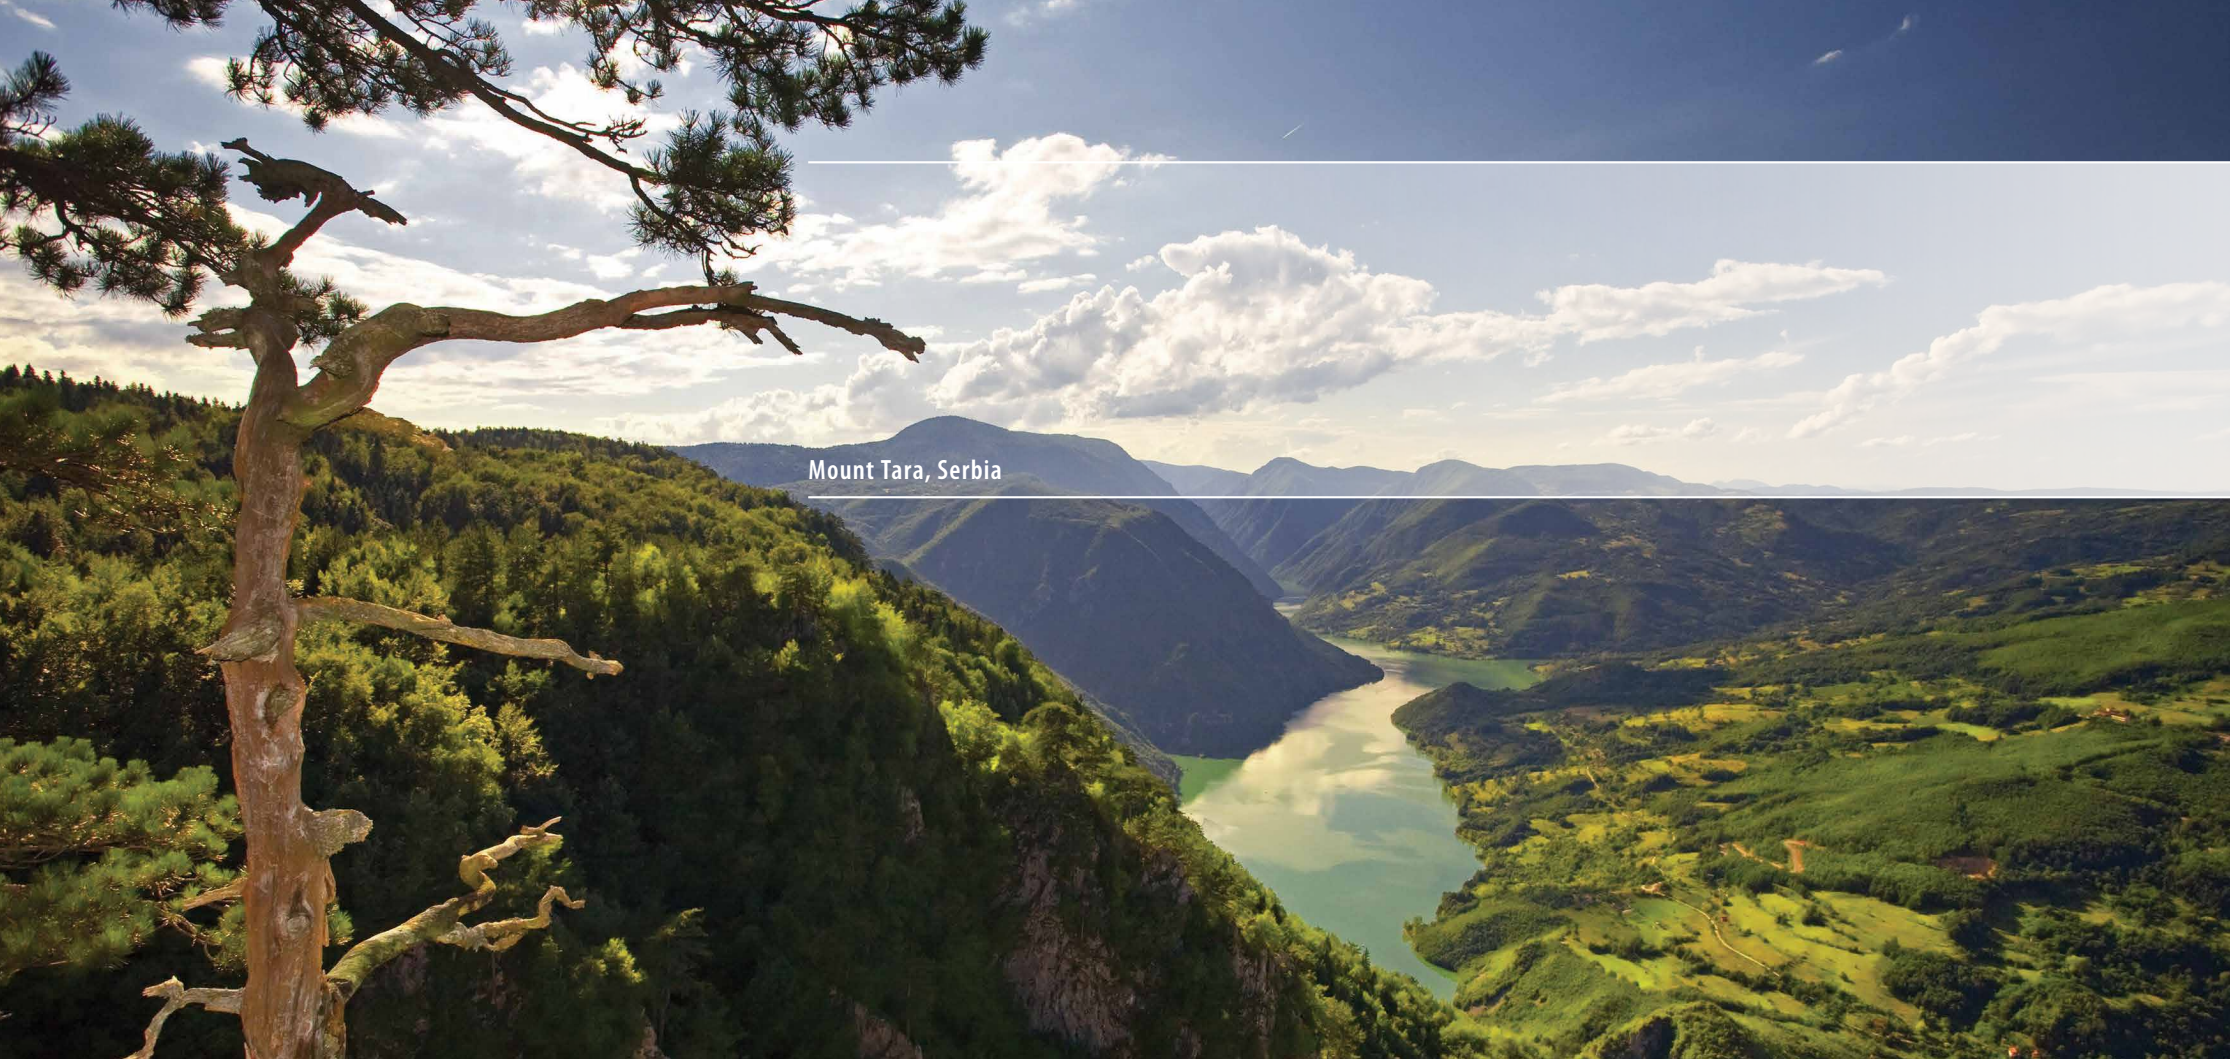

Montenegro, the still undiscovered and unspoiled gem of Europe, has something very fairy tale about it. A hillside monastery carved into a rock, an island built on the wrecks of enemy boats, dramatic mountains descending directly into the sea, the last habitat of world's rarest pelicans, Europe's deepest river canyon, 2,000-year-old olive tree, 18 scenic glacial lakes scattered over mountain massifs 2,000 meters above sea level – the land seems stitched together by magic, with the logic of its own.

Although it is the smallest East European country, Montenegro has a long and tumultuous history of warfare and courageous martial heroism. Abounding in a spectacular natural beauty, the country epitomizes the unique and unexplored.

GLITTERING OLD WORLD GLAMOUR

Once a favorite haunt of Hollywood royalty and wealthy elite during the 1950's and 1960's, Montenegro had lost much of its allure during the unfortunate Balkan conflicts during the 1990's. With the aim of keeping its rare blend of exclusive authenticity, the country ambitiously went to great length in recent years to regain the flavor of its nostalgic Old World glamour and become a new holiday haven with chic resorts and superb residential villages, large-scale events and one of the Europe's leading super yacht luxury marina.

Mount Tara, Serbia

Serbia

AT CROSSROADS BETWEEN EAST AND WEST

Breathtakingly rich in natural beauty beyond imagination, outstanding cultural inheritances from prehistoric, Roman, Byzantine, Medieval, Austro-Hungarian and Ottoman eras, mystical monuments, preserved folk traditions, amazing and curious contrasts – all that, and much more is Serbia.

Culture has always been a crucial part of the Serbian identity. Positioned at the crossroads between East and West, the country has inherited a considerable cultural wealth including, amongst others, remains of tens-of-centuries-old civilizations. As a matter of fact, traces of human population in present-day Serbia go back at least 400,000 years.

EUROPE'S WILDEST PARTIES

Unbelievably friendly and warm-hearted with a laid-back take on life, Serbs never miss the opportunity to throw a party and socialize with friends and family. Serbia offers an intriguingly varied nightlife, ranging from charming summer clubs in heaving barges on the Sava and Danube rivers, to busy restaurants and bars of the Belgrade's bohemian district 'Skadarlija'. It is also a proud host of the world-known and award-winning festivals held in unique venues, such as the 'Exit Music Festival' in the city of Novi Sad. Wherever you go in Serbia, you will encounter positive and exciting vibes of a 24/7 party scene.
